From Charleston.

CHARLESTON, Nov. 4.—The bombardment of Fort Sumter was kept up steadily by the Monitors and Land Batteries all day. Ninety-two thirty pounder rifle shots, with time fuses, were fired Tuesday night. No great damage was done.

The President to-day visited James Island, Forts Johnston and Pemberton, and all the batteries along the shore, reviewing all the troops in the positions they occupied, in case of an attack. He visited Secessionville and inspected Fort Lamar and the other works about Secessionville; also the old battle ground, and visited and inspected Wise's Brigade. The President made a thorough examination of all the works on James Island, and expressed himself exceedingly gratified with everything he saw, the fine appearance of the troops, the character and strength of the positions, and the number of works. He leaves at eight o'clock Thursday morning on the North Eastern Railroad for Florence.

Hon. Chas. Macbeth was re-elected Mayor of Charleston to night by a large majority.

Report from the Fort to-night says the number of shots fired to-day was 422.

SECOND DISPATCH.

CHARLESTON, Nov. 5.—The fire on Sumter was kept up last night by one monitor and Battery Gregg. No report of casualties this morning. The enemy's fire has very materially slackened. No new movements.

The President left at eight o'clock for Florence and Wilmington.

[THIRD DISPATCH.]

CHARLESTON, Nov. 5.—Slow firing to-day from two Monitors and Land Batteries. Five hundred and eighty-seven shots fired from sunset Wednesday to sunset Thursday, 125 of which missed. No casualties up to seven this evening. Another iron clad, supposed to be Atlanta, come in from sea and joined the fleet inside. Ironsides still quiet.

Three Monitors were observed taking in ammunition to day, and a prisoner say the Ironsides cannot go North or take part in the bombardment. He says the iron plates on the Ironsides were all loosened by the torpedo. They have ever since been kept steadily at the pumps.

The President at Wilmington.

WILMINGTON, Nov. 5.—The President arrived here at 7 this evening by special train from Charleston, and was received at Manchester depot by Gen. Whiting and staff and citizen's committee, and escorted to Gen. Whiting's residence, where he was received by Wm. A. Wright, Esq. The President replied in an able address. He was proud to be welcomed by such a large concourse of North Carolinians to the ancient and honorable town of Wilmington, upon whose soil he hoped the foot of an invading foe might never fall.

He had given Wilmington for her defence one of the best soldiers in the Confederacy, one whom he had seen tried in battle and who had risen higher as danger accumulated. He felt the full importance of the harbor and the only one still open for trade, and would do all that could be done for its defence. He exhorted all to do their duty, either in the field or in supporting the army and relieving the families of soldiers.

He spoke of the honors of the soldier and the disgrace of the speculator. He referred to Chickamauga and Charleston and spoke of the noble spirits of our army and people in both places. He paid a high tribute to the soldiers from this State, exhorting all to strive nobly for the right predicting a future of independence and liberty and prosperity.

Speculations.

WILMINGTON, Nov. 5.—Smith probably elected in 1st District and Bridgers in the second; third doubtful.—Fuller probably in 4th. Fifth very doubtful. Sixth, Gilmer probably elected. Much too little known to judge. Eighth, Lander elected, with 9th and 10th not heard from.

European News.

RICHMOND, Nov. 5.—European dates to 21st received.—Sultan of Turky had proposed, by telegraph, to purchase the Laird rebel rams at one hundred and thirty thousand pounds each. Laird's workmen again employed furnishing and fitting out one of the rams.

Political speeches by laboring men daily made in various parts of England.

Earl De Gray spoke in defence of the government policy of neutrality in American affairs and Beresford Hope spoke for the South. Mr. Collier, Solicitor General, urged neutrality and the preservation of neutral rights from violation by either side.

The question of finances of the new Mexican empire produced a correspondence between Napoleon and Maximillian. France will make all military arrangements, but not guarantee Mexican loan.

The city of Kenosima, Japan, completely destroyed by English fleet.

Dates from Mexico, October 1st, state that a conspiracy had been discovered against the imperial government and a large number of persons had been imprisoned, shot and exiled. No movements of French troops mentioned.

Eighth District.

CHARLOTTE, Nov. 5.—The following is the result of the Congressional election in the 8th Congressional District: Mecklenburg county, Lander 707, Ramsay 205; Lincoln, Lander 251, Ramsay 256; Gaston, Lander 143 Ramsay 166; Cabarrus, Lander 207; Ramsay 260. FROM CHATTANOOGA—LATE MOVEMENTS OF THE ENEMY—SEVERE FIGHTING LOSSES, &C.

ARMY OF TENNESSEE,
Chattanooga Valley, Oct. 28th.

The enemy has gained important advantages within the last forty-eight hours, which, unless they are counteracted in some way, will place the question of subsisting his army in Chattanooga this winter beyond all doubt. But before proceeding further, permit me to correct an error into which I fell in my letter on yesterday.

The point at which the enemy laid the pontoon bridges yesterday morning is Brown's Ferry, four and a half miles below Chattanooga by the river, or a mile and a half by land. To reach the ferry by land you cross the river in the rear of the town and the Moccasin, or neck of land below, which is verry narrow, though the distance around it is considerable.

Having constructed their pontoon boats and placed the bridge timber aboard, the pontoneers and the expeditionary forces embarked night before last at Chattanooga, and under cover of darkness proceeded quietly down the river to the ferry, where the troops landed, leaving the pontoneers in charge of the boats. Our cavalry videttes along the river bank, according to report, were asleep, and of course were taken in their blankets. Advancing up the hill, called by some Sand Hill, overlooking the river, the Federals came suddenly upon Gen. Law's infantry pickets—all of whom but one man are reported to have followed the example of the videttes, and gone to sleep—captured most of them or drove them in, and gained possession of the hill. The solitary picket who was awake discharged his piece, and this called up Col. Oates, of the 15th Alabama, who immediately deployed his regiment as skirmishers, and advanced against the enemy; but finding that their line of battle overlapped his line of skirmishers at both ends, he fell back, leading the foe in undisputed possession of the ground. This occurred just before day.

Meanwhile, the pontoneers, as soon as the success of the movement had become assured, went to work and laid down the bridge at the ferry, when heavy reinforcements which had proceeded by the land route, across the Moccasin or narrow tongue of land in the lower corner of the 7, passed over the river and commenced throwing up defensive works. The bridge is in full view of Lookout point, and not exceeding two miles distant.

But this is not all. A considerable force reached the scene this afternoon from Bridgeport, having marched down the south side of the river, along the railroad route. The column was preceded by a force of eight hundred or a thousand cavalry, and brought with it artillery and a wagon train. A scout, who hovered along the mountains and watched the movements of the column, informs me that it started from Shell Mound, five miles this side of Bridgeport, at noon yesterday, and that a considerable body of troops remained behind. The enemy was laying a pontoon bridge across the river at Shell Mound when he left.

The enemy now holds the south bank of the river, and the railroad from Bridgeport to Brown's Ferry. From the nearest point on the railroad to the ferry is one mile, and from the ferry across Moccasin Bend to Chattanooga is a mile and a half. The distance, then, the enemy will have to haul his supplies in the future, if he is suffered to hold his present position, will be two miles and a half.—The distance we have to haul our supplies from Chickamauga Station, over a horrid road, is seven miles. The enemy has to cross the Tennessee twice to reach this depot; we have to cross the Chickamauga once to reach ours.

But will the enemy be allowed to remain where he is? A vigorous assault yesterday might have dislodged him, but it is doubtful whether it can be done now without a loss altogether disproportionate to the advantages to be gained. It may be, nevertheless, that an attempt to drive him away will be made. You will be surprised to hear that the idea prevailed in high quarters yesterday that Thomas had seized his pontoons to cover his retreat by the river road to Bridge port! The hallucination that the Federals would not be able to move his supplies in Chattanooga is now dissipated into thin air.

As was intimated in my letter of last night, the artillery duel between our guns on Lookout and the enemy's Moccasin batteries came off to-day, and ended in—smoke.

SALLUST.

OCTOBER 29—7 A. M.

Jenkins attacked the enemy last night at Brown's ferry and drove them back, but was finally compelled to retire himself before largely superior numbers. Nothing is known as to the casualties on either side. The fighting continued for some hours, and will probably be renewed. I hear artillery firing across Lookout, in the direction of the ferry, as I close this postscript.

SALLUST.

ARMY OF TENNESSEE,
Chattanooga Valley, Oct. 29

I have but little to add to my postscript of this morning, touching the fight last night in Lookout Valley. This valley lies west of the mountain of that name, and between it and Raccoon mountain, and is drained by Lookout creek, which empties its waters into the Tennessee a short distance below Lookout point.

The attack was made under orders soon after midnight, by Gen. Jenkins, commanding Hood's division. The column which had arrived in the afternoon from Bridgeport did not proceed to Brown's ferry, where the new pontoon bridge is laid, but stopped two miles short of it, on the west side of Lookout creek. It was this column that Gen. Jenkins attacked. Lane's, Benning's, and Robertson's brigades were posted on the right, so as to hold in check the forces at the ferry, should they attempt to put to the relief of their friends; whilst Jenkins's old brigade, now commanded by Col. Bratton, moved up the valley to the left, and fell with great violence upon the column encamped in that direction. The attack was furious and very successful. Hampton's Legion, (infantry,) Col. Gary, got upon the enemy's left flank, forced it back upon the centre, captured his camps and wagon train, and finally got in rear of the left wing. In the meantime the forces at Brown's ferry were put in motion, and were pressing down to the relief of their flying comrades. They were in such numbers and the ground was of such a character that it was found impossible to hold them in check; whereupon Gen. Jenkins recalled Bratton, now pushing the foe back in great confusion. The order to withdraw was not given any too soon, for the forces from Brown's ferry were within three hundred yards of the only bridge over Lookout creek by which the Confederates could retreat, when the last of Bratton's brigade passed over it. Law, Benning, and Robertson did not become fully engaged, and suffered but slight loss. Bratton's brigade, on the contrary, lost nearly 400 in killed, wounded and missing. Among the killed was the intrepid Col. Kilpatrick, of the first South Carolina. A few of our wounded fell into the hands of the enemy; this was inconsiderable in a night affair. The loss of the enemy must have been heavy. He was not prepared for the attack; was thrown into confusion, and his lines doubled back upon each other, so that the same ball from a Confederate gun might dispatch two or three men at the same time. No wagons were brought off though a number of mules and horses were killed. Hampton's Legion captured a flag, which was saved. Among the twenty or thirty prisoners taken were representatives from two army corps, the 11th and 12th, from the Potomac.

An intelligent Texas scout went within a short distance of the enemy's field hospital this morning, and he reports their wounded at from 800 to 1,000. He thinks it would be quite safe to put their entire casualties at 1,000.

Our guns on Lookout shelled the road to day along which the enemy's trains and artillery were moving towards Brown's ferry, and compelled their infantry force to change their positions more than once. Unfortunately, not more than one-third of the shells which have just been received from Richmond exploded. The guns engaged in the artillery duel with the Moccasin batteries yesterday were not Alexander's 6ne parrotts as reported; they were taken up to-day, and will render the enemy's position in Lookout valley unpleasant, if nothing more.

It is but proper to add, in correction of an error in my last letter, that it was only the cavalry videttes and not Law's pickets, who were surprised the night of the 26th, when the enemy effected a landing and threw a bridge across the river at Brown's ferry. There was but one brigade of infantry (Law's) on picket at the time, and that was strung along the river from Lookout mountain to a point five miles below. It was impossible for so small a force, thus widely distributed, to prevent a landing in the night.

It is reported that the President has offered Gen. Polk his choice of three commands, viz: At Richmond, at Mississippi, (under Johnston,) and in the trans-Mississippi Department. It is also reported that Gen Hardee is already on his way to join this army.

Our Troubles Thickening.

We have feared for months that North Carolina would become the theatre of active hostilities during the coming winter, and the recent movements of the enemy only tend to strengthen the impression. The Federal authorities, fearing that the rule of Foster and Peck has been too mild, have ordered the miserable wretch Butler to this State. B. F. Butler, who bolted at Charleston and helped to bring on the war, and who by his brutality at New-Orleans has made his name a by-word and a reproach wherever the English language is spoken: this secession. Union-shrieking abolition fanatic is to come to our coast to ravage and plunder.

Well, it may be best that it is so, for it is time that our people should realize, if the war is to go on to the bitter end and no effort be made to stop it by other means than the sword, that every man physically able to shoulder a musket must place himself on a war-footing; or suffer his property to be scattered to the four winds and himself enslaved. If every man who remains at home, regardless of business or profession, will turn out and meet the enemy whenever they dare advance from our coast, we can drive them back and save ourselves and property from the brutality and violence they have visited upon other States, but if every man who buys a horse or mule, or holds a contemptible little office under the State or Confederate government, is to be exempt from home-guard duty, then indeed is our case a desperate one, if not hopeless. The Confederate authorities will no doubt do all in their power to protect this State, but then much is expected of the citizens, and he who skulks from military duty now is no true friend of the South, however loud his professions may be.

When the bad weather sets in and all operations in Virginia have to be given over till spring, we may expect to see the Yankees swarm on our coast, and an attempt to advance and take the capitol itself is not at all improbable. The hour of trial is upon us, and he who runs away, falters or skulks now is more to be despised than the common enemy who comes to burn and plunder. Butler will not spend the winter quietly at Newbern. We may expect active operations along our coast during the winter, and the sooner we prepare to meet and successfully contend with the enemy the better it will be for us.

From Lee's Army.

One of our regular correspondents in Lee's army, writing on the 29th, sends us the vote in Ramseur's and Daniels' brigades, which will be found in our tabular statement.

Of army matters our correspondent says:

There is nothing new in camp. All is quiet on the river. Our cavalry yet remain on the other side and during the past week a large detail has been hauling railroad iron from the road on the other side which we tore up on our retrograde march. There was some little skirmishing in the neighborhood of Warrenton Junction with the enemy's cavalry when we first began to haul the iron away. Latterly, however, we have been unmolested.—There are no indications of a movement on the part of either army. We are busy building winter quarters but have but little hope of being allowed to remain in them through the winter.

List of North Carolinians, who have died from wounds received at the battle of Chickamauga, at Preston's Division Hospital:

Private Jesse Perry, Company E 58th North Carolina regiment.

Private D. M. Loftin, Company E, 58th North Carolina regiment.

Private W. H. McBee, Company A, 58th North Carolina regiment.

Private G. Phillips, Company B, 58th North Carolina regiment.

Private Arthur Falls, Company A, 58th North Carolina regiment.

Private W. E. McKinney, Company G, 58th North Carolina regiment.

Private S. Clark, Company K, 58th North Carolina regiment.

Private Fullwood, Company F, 58th North Carolina regiment.

H. H. Crisp, Company H, 58th North Carolina regiment. (In Bates' Brigade Hospital.)

The above are buried near their respective hospitals.

A. D. McVoy, Chaplain 58th Ala.

A Richmond paper complains that there are too many Yankee prisoners enjoying the freedom of that city on parole. If this be so whose fault is it? Certainly the Confederate authorities, whose position empowers them to incarcerate hundreds of their own citizens in loathsome dungeons on mere suspicion, should be sufficient for the protection of the city against prowling Yankees. Gen. Winder and his Baltimore detectives seem to govern our metropolis, however, and we must submit to what we cannot help.

Election Returns.

Turner is doubtless elected in this, the 5th district.—His majority in Orange, including army vote, is 822 and Wake 618; and his friends think that Granville will give him a majority that Arrington cannot overcome in the other counties.

In the 3rd district the contest will probably be close between Leach and McRae. We received the following special dispatch last night:

Goldsboro, Nov. 5.

Official returns of this county (Wayne) give McRae 322, Leach 204, Devane 14 and Faison 24. The army vote, as received at the Clerk's office from the several companies from this county, gives Leach 161, McRae 114, Devane 45 and Faison 33. Rumor says Leach has carried Johnston by 300 majority. No returns from Duplin or Sampson.

Leach has got a good vote in the army and if he does as well in Jones, Onslow and Sampson as his friends think he will, he will be elected. The contest is certainly between him and McRae.

In the 4th district Fuller leads as far as heard from, and there is but little doubt of his election over Strange and Mears. Fuller is a Conservative and in the army, and the people of the district could probably not make a better selection.

We give in our tabular statement the vote as far as received, but enough has not come to hand to enable us to come at even the probable results. We shall continue to give the returns as fast as they come in.

One precinct in Stanly county gives Christian 42 and Ashe 2. Christian's friends confidently count on his election.

Yellowley carried Lenoir county, but we have not enough from the 2nd district to form any correct conclusion as to who will be elected. The vote at home, as well as in the army has been very small.

We received the following special despatch last night:

Salisbury, Nov 5.—Eighth district—official vote, including army vote so far as heard from, gives Ramsay 712 Lander 248, Stancill 7.

[This must refer to the vote of Rowan county, and if so Ramsay leads Lander about 700, and three counties to hear from.—Ed. Prog.]

The following special dispatch was received last night:

Kinston, Nov. 5.—Lenoir county gives Yellowley 127, Bridgers 86. The army vote will increase Yellowley's majority. Green county gives 126 majority for Yellowley.

The Legislature and the Governor's Salary.

We believe in paying good workmen good wages, and hence concur with our correspondent, "Justice," that the present salary of the Governor, in the depreciated state of the currency, is not sufficient to furnish food and raiment for a family. Notwithstanding the howl that was raised against his loyalty, when a candidate, there is probably no man in the State who could have guided the ship of State in these tempestuous times with a more masterly hand than has our present patriotic and much loved Chief Magistrate. So prompt, so thoroughly a Governor has he shown himself at all times and under all circumstances, that even his enemies grant this, and it will be well for the State while he is in office we are sure it will not be his fault. Any one who has a family to support, in Raleigh, knows but too well that the salary which the Governor now receives is not enough, and when the Assembly meets we shall not hesitate to urge the increase which our correspondent suggests. We give his letter:

Editor Progress:—The time is near when our Legislature will again meet to discharge its various and onerous duties. Among these I will respectfully suggest that of increasing the Governor's salary. Since its last action on this subject there has been great depreciation of the currency, and as a consequence of it, provisions of every kind as well as clothing, have run up to fabulous prices. Our Chief Magistrate, in the discharge of his various duties, which all acknowledge he does with a zeal and patriotism unsurpassed, should at least be fed and clothed from the public purse. Can that be done with his present salary? It must be plain to every person that it cannot; therefore let it be raised to at least ten thousand dollars, which would not be equal to the salary of $2 500, under its times. The public servant is certainly worthy of his support, is the opinion of Battleboro, Oct. 29, 1863. Justice.

Canvass Harness.—We have before noticed the set of harness, made of canvass, to be seen at the store of Mr. Hutchings, and we are not surprised to learn, on further enquiry, that our efficient post Quartermaster Maj. Pierce, was the first to suggest this method of a saving of leather wherever more shoes may be furnished to our soldiers.—The Standard says of the harness:

We saw a day or two since at the harness establishment of Col. C. W. D. Hutchings, of this place, some harness made of cloth and leather, about three-fourths of the former, which appear to be durable in their character.—They were made under the direction of Quartermaster Pierce, and if they will answer the purpose—the bearings and fastenings only being of leather—a great saving in leather will be effected. They present a very neat appearance. Col. H. informs us that the saving is about twenty pounds in leather to the set.

According to the Richmond Whig the people of that city are being starved by the imbecility of the Confederate authorities, their impressing operations having frozen all the arteries of supply. The Whig should not be too severe on the authorities, for they are doubtless doing the best that they can under the circumstances. We fear there is but little to flow through the arteries of supply.

Oysters have made their appearance at the eating houses. We are indebted to W. H. Finch, Esq., for a nice lot sent us yesterday evening. Mr. Finch receives them twice a week, Thursday and Saturday, and sells them from the market house, by the measure. Families desiring to be supplied will do well to hand him their orders.

The attention of the farmers of the State is called to the card of the Chief Controlling Quartermaster, Richmond, Va., asking information relative to the collection and preservation of sweet potatoes and other tithes.

Escape of a Confederate Officer from Fort McHenry.—The Richmond Dispatch says:

About the time of the capture of Charlestown by Gen. Imboden, Capt. John C. Blackford of Major Gilmore's battalion, was sent in the direction of Martinsburg with a view to ascertain as much information as possible with reference to the position and numbers of the enemy at that point. He had with him some thirty select men, but their movements were observed by the Union men of the neighborhood, who informed the enemy in the town of his location. At night a large force was sent out to effect his capture, which, unfortunately, proved successful.—The whole party was sent to Fort McHenry. They had been there but a few days when Capt B determined to attempt an escape, and, mentioning the matter to some of his men, two of them resolved to join him in the attempt. That night the three managed to get out of the fort and took to the water, but had scarcely commenced swimming before they were hailed by a sentinel, who gave the alarm, and the whole guard was turned out and commenced firing upon the party. The other two becoming alarmed, turned back, but Capt. Blackford, resolved upon regaining his liberty, kept on, and swam across to the Lazaretto. From this point he made his way into the city of Baltimore, but the fact of his escape had spread, and Lincoln's detectives were actively on the look out for him. He was not long in falling into the hands of two of them who started with him to the office of the Provost Marshal. Fearing that he would be arrested, and having no other arms, he had provided himself with two rocks of pretty heavy calibre, and watching his opportunity, with these he knocked both the detectives and fled. He next morning found himself making straight line for the Potomac, which he reached with the assistance and direction of a good Southern man. His troubles did not end here, however, as he had to pass through the enemy's lines on the Virginia side. This he succeeded in doing safely, and a few days ago reported at Major Gilmore's camp in the valley.

The parties who attempted to escape with Capt. B. were a gentleman named Reed, formerly of Baltimore, and a Mr. George Shooter, of Winchester. As far as is known at present either of their wives injured by the firing of the guard, but the latter, himself, both were recaptured. They belonged to Gilmore's command.

Major-General W. T. Sherman has succeeded General Grant in the command of the Department of the Tennessee.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

THE OFFICE OF CHIEF CONTROLLING QUARTERMASTER, RICHMOND, VA.

FOR THE COLLECTION OF TITHES, DIRECTS that the following be published with the view of eliciting information on the subject from the farmers of North Carolina. The plan proposed is from a leading farmer in Hanover County, Va.

Sept. 15, 1863.—Those most successful in keeping sweet potatoes during the winter, in Hanover Co., Va., adopt this:

In a high, dry spot, excavate a hole of convenient size and shape, to the depth of four or five feet. Put in a layer of pine tags, say three inches thick, the sides also should be lined with the same as the potatoes are put in. After the hole is filled to within one foot of the surface, and a shelter to keep off the rain erected, the potatoes are allowed to rem in untouched for about a week, to undergo what is called the sweat. Then pine tags are thrown into the hole even with the surface, and plank laid over. It is of the greatest importance that no water should run in upon the potatoes, and they should not be moved or touched until taken out for use. Pine tags the best non-conductor, universally used in Hanover. The usual country shelter is made of top fodder and corn stalks. Before the potatoes are put in the hole, each one should be rubbed with the hand, taking off all dirt and roots. The potatoes should not be washed or bruised in any manner.

GEORGE H. FITZWILSON,

State Journal will copy three times in tri-weekly, and the Fayetteville Observer and Wilmington Journal three times weekly, and send accounts to Major W. W. Pierce, Q. M., Raleigh. They will also please call attention Editorially to the above.
